The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by DelMonte et al Re.34,397.

DelMonte shows an arrow head including ferrule 16; blades 38 secured to the ferrule; a notch 48 in the blades, having a forward side perpendicular to the arrow shaft; and a ring 34 fitted in the notches and in contact with the forward side of the notch, so the ring will remain engaged when the arrow is pulled from a target.

Claims 18-27 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Sharrar et al 2,888,264.

Sharrar shows an arrow head including a ferrule 26, 32; blades 28; and a ring 42 secured to the blades. The ferrule, blades and ring may be integrally cast as a monolithic structure (column 3, lines 3-7).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 9, 30, & 34-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Adams 6,077,180 in view of DelMonte.

Adams shows an arrow head including a ferrule with slots to receive blades; a retainer nut 19 having a tapered portion 20, threaded onto the arrowhead for locking the blades to the ferrule; and a tip 22 threaded to the forward section of the ferrule. However, Adams does not show a cutting ring secured to the blades. One of ordinary skill would recognize that a cutting ring would be desirable to cut a larger hole in game. For example, DelMonte shows that blades may be provided with a notch 48, and a ring 34 received in the notches. One would recognize that this ring would be useful with the arrow head of Adams. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the arrow head of Adams with a cutting ring, as suggested by DelMonte.

Claims 4-8, 10-17, 28, 29, & 31-33 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
